

BAUHAUS & BAROQUE

Raitenhaslach

The Cistercian monastery Raitenhaslach is part of the rich Bavarian monastery landscape, which originated in the 8th century. According to the rule: „Ora et labora“ („pray and work“) of St. Benedict in the monasteries on one part a spiritual retreat has been lived, on the other hand cosmopolitanism. In addition to prayer and meditation the monks dedicated their work to pastoral care, the school system and patient care. Outgoing from the religious center of Cluny in Burgundy, came in the 12th century reform orders as the Cistercians, Premonstratensians and Augustinian Canons were added, followed by the Mendicant orders of the Franciscans, Dominicans, Carmelite and Augustinian Hermits.

*Image: Meeting Room
„Walter von Dyck“ © Uli Benz / TUM*

TUM ACADEMY CENTRE IN RAITENHASLACH

The Academy Centre of TUM in Raitenhaslach located in the southeast of Bavaria, about 120 km from Munich, 85 km from Passau and 50 km from Salzburg. Not only geographically well situated but also scenically idyllic located in the Salzach loop the former Cistercian monastery Raitenhaslach exerts a special charm and is for guests from home and abroad a memorable experience. 2013 signed the TUM with the city Burghausen a contract for the use of former prelate Stock as Study and Seminar Centre. Burghausen had a decade earlier acquired the monastery. The property is left with TUM on the first 25 years for free.

The Technical University of Munich ties on their new location to the Academy Origins and traditions of science because the natural sciences in Bavaria emerged from the monastic communities in the 18th century. So were for example, the Cistercians in their time European leaders in the field of hydraulic engineering.

The Academy Centre of TUM in Raitenhaslach is a modern and at the same time historical convention center. While respecting the conversation requirements of this historical site the so-called prelate Stock was comprehensively renovated and with modern technology well equipped. Far from the University's everyday life the spiritual recreation and the creative, scientific exchange is promoted. Researcher's elites from Germany and other countries are looking at the former Cistercian monastery for a dialogue with Elites in politics, business and society. Raitenhaslach is thus again a „place of exchange of knowledge“.

*Vaulted ceiling above
the Stairwell with frescoes
„Abraham and his guests“
Franz Joseph Soll*

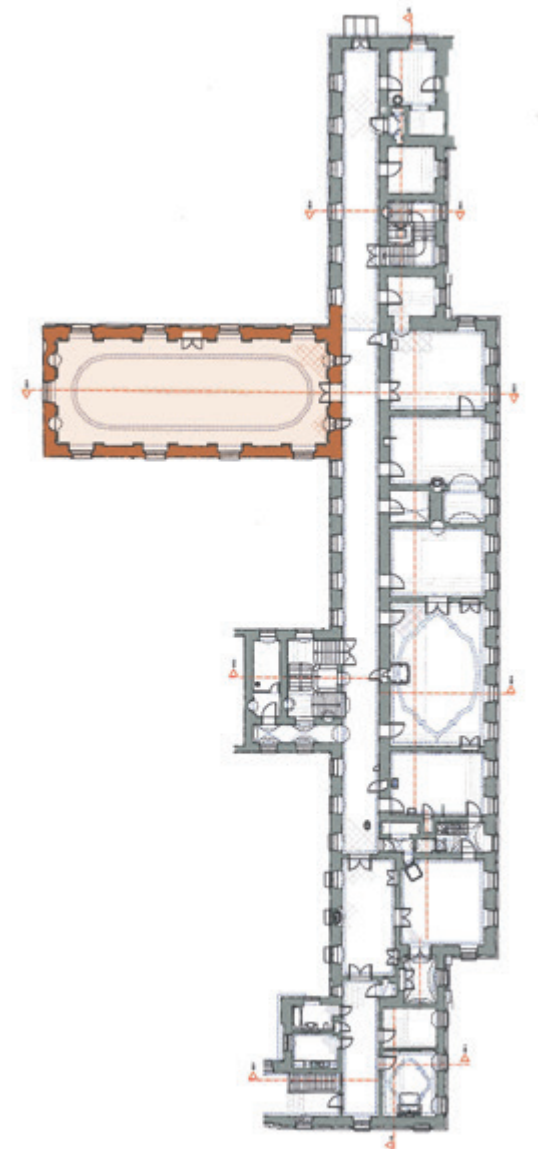

Image: Stairwell © Uli Benz / TUM

BAUHAUS & BAROQUE

AULA MAIOR CEREMONIAL HALL

seminar room „Walther Meissner“ with oven

SC SEMINAR

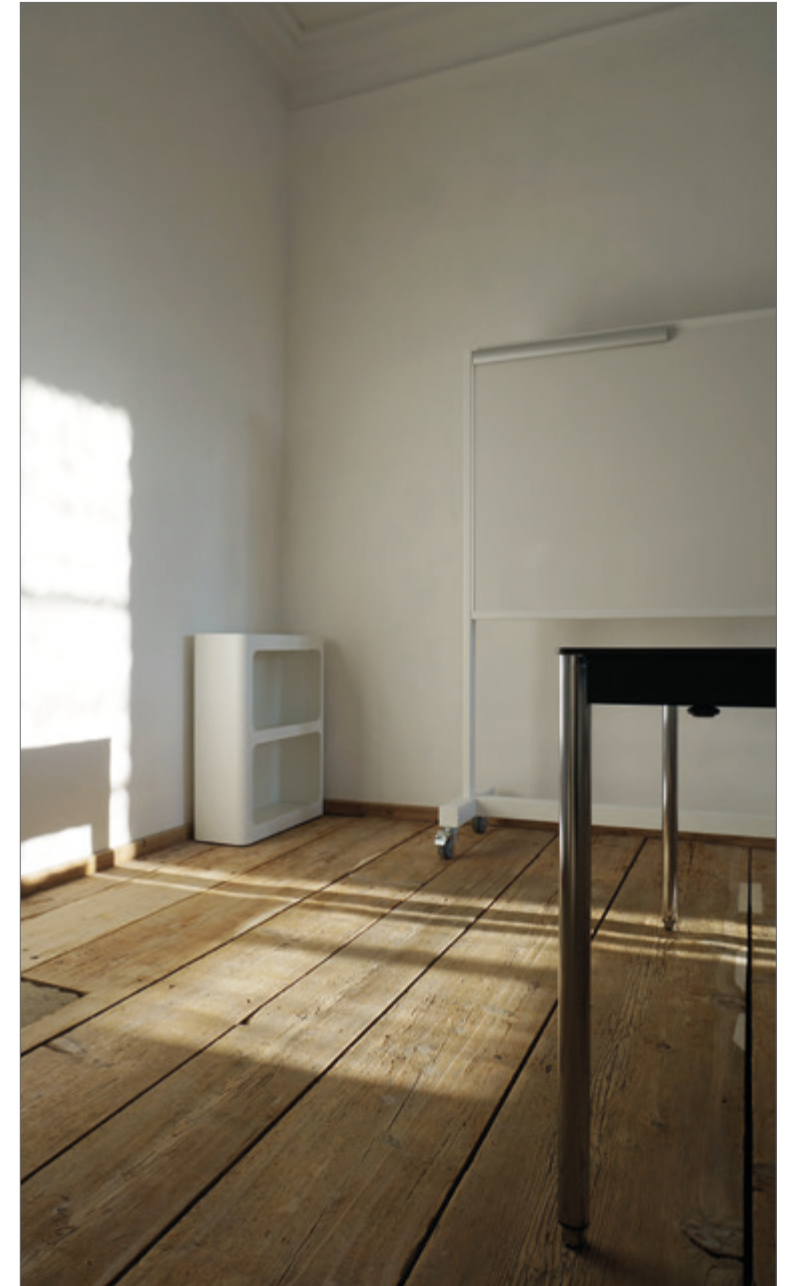

SEMINAR- & CONFERENCE TABLE

Based on the requirement profile and draft of the planning interior designer Dipl. Ing. Interior Architect Andreas A. P. Anetseder the seminar tables and individual pieces of furniture made of sheet metal were designed and delivered by xchange.

door lock on the Red Salon on the 1st floor © Andreas Heddergott / TUM

*Door fitting in the meeting room
„Walther von Dyck“ on the 1st floor
© Uli Benz / TUM*

*Door lock in the seminar room
„Ernst Otto Fischer“ on the ground floor
© Uli Benz / TUM*

seminar room „Liesel Beckmann“ with ceiling paintings, that lent to the space it's former name Butterfly Room.

